CATTLE STEALING CASE ON MAUI

Territory Gets Verdict In Long-Fought Case

(Special to the Bulletin)
WAILUKU, Maui, April 24.—The last jury case of the March term of the Second Circuit Court was heard last Thursday, when they gave a verdict against the defendants in the case of the Territory vs. Robello, Pires, Kealoha, and Ma Fong of Omapio, Makawao, for larceny of cattle from the Halekale Ranch Co. C. W. Ashford aided the prosecution, while Judge Quarles championed the cause of the defendants. This was the same case that resulted in a mistrial during this term owing to one jurymen remaining until the end for the defendants. At this second hearing the case was a hard-fought legal battle between both attorneys, the case lasting several days, and the arguments put up will long be remembered by those who heard them.

FAIRBANKS TALKS

The Territory has had many problems to contend with, and the fact that they have been worked out as they have is largely due to the fact that for 50 years the people of Hawaii have been fitting themselves for American citizenship. So when annexation came the Hawaiians were fairly well fitted for American citizenship. This is demonstrated, he said, by the fact that the Legislature, composed almost entirely of Hawaiians, compares favorably with the Legislatures of other States and Territories. Mr. Fairchild said the Territory owes much to the missionaries.

"One thing that has been charged against us is that we are a one-crop country. That is true, but we have been trying to introduce other crops. But the planters have allowed themselves to be taxed to bring in other industries and to bring in people who may become American citizens. And in two years we will be on practically the same basis as the people on the mainland. We believe in home government. We believe each county and each municipality should choose its own officers. And we believe the Territory should be allowed to work out its own destiny."

Representative Sheldon on behalf of the House extended the aloha nui of the members to Mr. Fairbanks. He said:

"The honor has been conferred upon me to accord you, Mr. Fairbanks, a hearty welcome to our shores, or, as we Hawaiians are in the habit of saying, 'Aloha Nui.'"

"We feel that we have been particularly fortunate in having such a great and strong friend as yourself to help us."

"The first matter of importance here was the establishment of popular government; placing the voting strength of the Territory in the hands of the Hawaiian-Americans. This showed us that the American people had such confidence in us that they thought it safe to trust local affairs to us. You will find that this trust has not been abused, and that our disposition is still, as it has always been on the part of Hawaiians, to welcome the traveler in our midst."

"We of Hawaii feel we have our problems to solve—problems which, to the men who guide the Nation's destiny, may seem insignificant, but to us they are real and serious."

"A little more than ten years have passed since these islands were adopted by the United States, but already many changes have been made which tend to bring our life, social as well as political, in harmony with conditions on the mainland. Our aim is, through our own endeavors and with the assistance of our great and experienced friends, to so hasten progress that Hawaii in due time may reach her ultimate political goal—Statehood."

"Being a Hawaiian-American myself, I can assure you, sir, that from the earliest civilization of the people of these islands, and right down through the changing periods of our government, a warm heart and a glad hand have always been extended to the people of the mainland."

"On behalf of the members of this House, and as a Representative elected by the people, I extend to you our most hearty welcome, and hope that your stay with us will be most enjoyable and beneficial to yourself and to the members of your family, feeling assured, as I do, that every one in Hawaii will stand ready to do what he can to welcome you. Aloha."

Mr. Fairbanks' Address
Mr. Fairbanks arose to respond to the addresses of welcome.

"I am not come," he said, "to make an extended address. I understand you are in the closing hours of a busy session. I have come rather to thank you for your hospitality to me and those with me. It is impossible for me to find words to express our full appreciation of what you have so generously done for us."

"It is with particular pleasure I have come to visit the Hawaiian Islands, for I had some little part in making Hawaii a part of the United States, and I had a share in the drafting of the Organic Act."

"To the genius and statesmanship of one man above all others it is due that we meet here and greet one another as citizens of a great American republic. I need not say I mean the late William McKinley. None stands higher in the estimation of the people than William McKinley. And I hope that in time there will arise here a monument to the memory of the man who made Hawaii a part of the United States."

"You have your problems, different in some respects from those that confront other States and Territories. Their solution is to be effected according to the principles of our republican form of government."

"It is not possible for the members of the Legislature always to think and act aright. What should be demanded of a legislator is that he should act according to the best judgment that is in him."

"Under the Organic Act we wisely provided for a general legislature. There were some who thought we were going too far. But subsequent events have proved we were right. We reserved to ourselves the right to set aside our legislation. Be it said to the honor and the credit of the Hawaiian people, there has never been any necessity to wipe from the statute books any of your legislation."

"Since I came to Hawaii I have been more and more confirmed in the wisdom and far-sightedness of our judgment."

"Your prosperity is our prosperity. Your honor our honor. Therefore we look upon your development with a friendly interest."

"One of our speakers welcomed me as a stranger within your gates. That is true only figuratively, for under American institutions I am a member of your family. And if we tarry here too long I am afraid I shall lose some members of my family."

"I not only congratulate Hawaii upon the excellence of her legislative department, but upon her other departments. I have studied the history of Hawaii during the ten years of your dwelling under the American flag with very great interest. I have observed that the people have chosen wisely in respect to those who make the laws. I have observed broad-minded statesmanship in the administration of the laws. I wish I could express my appreciation of each, but time forbids. But I am glad to be able to meet here your Executive, Governor Frear."

"I am glad to observe that the laws are justly interpreted and that justice is accorded to all."

"The Hawaiian Islands rest here in their majesty and their beauty. I will long remember my visit because of the sweet fragrance of the flowers, but above and beyond that by the inexpressible sweet fragrance of your hospitality."

"Some people get impatient with the members of the Legislature, and some members get impatient with themselves. They think they are slow; that they do not get on fast enough. The fact is that the Legislature is a deliberative body. The danger is not that we'll have too few laws; the danger is that we'll have too many laws. (Of course I do not refer to the Hawaiian Legislature.) The value of a legislator's service depends upon the value of the laws he enacts and the poor laws he does not enact. A member who at the end of the session does not find upon the statute books any laws with his own name need not feel disappointed if he has stopped the enactment of poor laws."

"One of the faults of Legislatures is extravagance. This evil has insinuated itself in public concerns, even outside the Legislature of the Territory of Hawaii. It is a difficult matter for a legislator to draw the line between necessary and unnecessary expenditures. They are sent by voters who demand that they bring back with them some measure of the public budget. So they sometimes advocate measures which are unwarranted."

"It is important to understand that everything can't be accomplished in a day, or in a single legislative session. I was glad to hear the President of the Senate say that this Legislature has confined its expenditures nearly within the income. How nearly, he did not say, but it is something to have it approximately within. But it is better to have the expenditures entirely within the income."

"That people make the greatest progress who always listen to the wise voice of conservatism."

"I find I am elaborating a mere word of courtesy into a speech. I don't know why it should be so."

"I want in conclusion to thank you for your unbounded hospitality. I know not whether good fortune shall bring me here again. I hope it may."

"I hope all good may come to the people of Hawaii, that their most optimistic dreams may be realized. It is the home of your birth. It is a splendid thing to owe allegiance to any State or Territory of the United States. Proud as you are of being Hawaiians, I am glad to see that you are proud of the fact that you are American citizens."

Speaker Holstein made an address in which he stated that this was the proudest day of the session of 1939. He concluded by thanking the ex-Vice President for his presence.

ENTERTAINED ON MAUI

(Special to the Bulletin)

WAILUKU, Maui, April 24.—Miss Louisa Harrison and five other lady friends from Honolulu have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Dutro at their Kula home in Wailuku for the past two weeks. Last Monday evening the host and some of the gentlemen friends of the young ladies had a luau in honor of the thirty-second birthday of Miss Harrison. The affair was a very enjoyable one and the luau was interspersed with beautiful Hawaiian singing by the visitors until after midnight. Miss Harrison and her friends all left for home by last Wednesday's Claudine.

SHOOTING AT AIEA; THREE MEN INJURED

Sheriff Jarrett is down at Aiea plantation looking into the matter of three Japanese who are reported to have been shot at that place last night. It appears that Harada, who is alleged to be one of the bunch of thugs which was broken up during Sheriff Iauken's term of office, pulled a gun on some countrymen and shot down three of them. Harada then gave himself up to the police, and the facts of the matter were telephoned to Sheriff Jarrett.

One of the victims is shot in the stomach, another in the hip, and the third in the knee. The first man is reported to be in a very serious condition. The shooting seems to have been the result of a gambling dispute in which the three men became involved. Harada is said to be a real "bad man" and one who would stop at nothing.

MEMBERS OF HOUSE RESURRECTED BILL

Change Their Minds And Pass Loan Measure Saturday

HOUSE

57th Day—Afternoon Session
For the first time during the session the House had so much work on hand Saturday that it was necessary to hold a Saturday afternoon session to clear up the calendar.

A number of Senate bills were passed, and the House resurrected the Loan Appropriation Bill, which it had buried in the morning, and, after saying its own conscience by cutting out Alfonso's $10,000 item for Honolulu water works, thereby reducing the total from $219,300 to $209,300, passed the bill along the Senate.

The House also took occasion to "honor" one of its own number by naming one of Alfonso's Hilo parks "Kealawa Park." What Hilo will think about this is not yet a matter of record and probably could not be published if it were.

The following bills passed their third reading:

Senate Bill 76, relating to witnesses' fees and mileage, in criminal and grand jury cases.

Senate Bill 148.

Senate Bill 124, Robinson, providing that real and personal property to the value of $500 shall be exempt from the 1 per cent. tax.

Senate Bill 147, Baker, relating to records of births, deaths, and marriages, making it the duty of the Secretary of the Board of Health to file such records received from the County Registrars.

Senate Bill 112, the automobile tax measure, making the tax 1 cent per pound.

Senate Bill 85, Harvey, to increase the salary of the Mayor's secretary to $1800.

NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH FROM BURNING

The house of Harry F. Davison, at Kapahulu, was burned to the ground yesterday afternoon, and one of the children had a very narrow escape from an awful death. Mrs. Pierce, a neighbor, noticed that the house was on fire, and at once ran over to the building. She was just in time to rescue the children, the last one being taken out when the whole place was a mass of flame.

The parents were in town at the time of the fire, having left the children in charge of a Japanese servant. The Japanese, wishing to take a trip to see some friends, left the children in the servant's room, and the baby in some way got hold of a box of matches, and set fire to the house.

The fire had attained considerable headway before Mrs. Pierce noticed the blaze, and it was only with the greatest of exertion that she was able to convey the children to safety. It is owing to her prompt action that the children are alive today. The fire alarm was not turned in as there was no chance of saving the house, and there was no danger of the fire spreading as the house stands by itself and it not near any other building.
